

Msgr. Kenneth G. Morman Testimonial

Brian Pusateri put on his retreat for our parish in February, 2015. It was very well received. Brian is a humble man, and by sharing his own brokenness and challenges on the road to healing, he allowed the rest of us to face those same challenges in our own lives. His message is not that of the trendy self-help counselor but the profoundly Scriptural and Christian one of encouraging everyone to take our brokenness to the cross and there experience the healing of the one who came to take away the sins of the world, especially our sins, so that we can rise to a new and fuller life. His age-old message will resonate particularly well with the Year of Mercy being inaugurated by Pope Francis, because it's a message of a compassionate God who is eager to forgive and empower us to begin again, if we just leave behind the pretense that everything is just fine and we are in no need of that healing. Brian's delivery is riveting, and he is very creative in his use of illustration and music to unlock the message for those who take part. The retreat was an experience of genuine renewal, and the feedback we heard for a long time afterwards was appreciation and satisfaction on the part of those who participated.

Pastor Grant Aaseng Testimonial

“Blessed, Broken and Scared” was everything our congregation could have hoped for, and more. Brian Pusateri is an engaging speaker with a compelling story, who helped us to become more honest about the brokenness in our lives, knowing that all our personal struggles are already known to God. He helped us to more fully appreciate the good news that God’s greatest blessings are mercy, forgiveness, salvation and eternal life. I would recommend Brian’s presentation to any congregation that is seeking to deepen faith and build more authentic Christian friendships.
